About the Stephenson House

The Stephenson House is a hands-on living history museum whose mission is to provide visitors with a real-life glimpse into Edwardsville in the 1820's. Col Benjamin Stephenson and his wife Lucy built their four-room Federal style house in 1820, two years after Illinois became the 21st state. The Stephenson House was purchased by The City of Edwardsville and restored by the Friends of the Benjamin Stephenson House in 1999. It opened in 2006.

You are invited to join the Friends of the 1820 Col. Benjamin Stephenson House

The support of members of the Friends of the Benjamin Stephenson House has allowed visitors to this restored 1820's home to experience the life and times of early Edwardsville and the young state of Illinois in an inter-active, hands-on way for more that 15 years. The Friends organization ensures that this Illinois and Edwardsville landmark's contribution to the state and the nation is preserved for present and future visitors to experience.

Without the annual support of members of the Friends organization, the Benjamin Stephenson House could not stay in operation.
